DANVERS — Warmth, calmness, a feeling of energy, a sense of connection — these are some of the sensations reported by wearers of Sara Yo Spirit Jewels, offered by Randy and Hannah Hershoff of Danvers. According to the couple, people are inexplicably drawn to certain colorfully shaped stones from China that are artfully incorporated into their new company's necklaces and bracelets.

"The stones bring strength, support and serenity," said Randy, who is making the spiritual power of the ancient stones available in the U.S. for the first time.

Hannah, an ophthalmologist who is originally from China, was familiar with the stones, which are mined from southeast China. Comprised of kaolin, also known as kaolinite, a crystalline mineral formed millions of years ago by the hydrothermal decomposition of granite, the stones were discovered 2,000 years ago and were available only to
